THINGS THEATRICAL.

Fay Templeton, it is said, has added $6,000 a week to the receipts of "The Runaways."

Sir Henry Irving will only use American "supers" during his forthcoming tour of this country.

George Edwardes has cabled from London a desire to present Miss Cahill and her company in "Nancy Brown."

Frank Currier will play Sir Andrew Agneclock and Scott Craven the Duke Orsino in Viola Allen's production of "Twelfth Night."

"The Queen of Laughter," a new opera by Miss Isabel de Witt Kaplan and S. W. Brady, will be produced next season by the Bostonians.

Edna Aug will next season be starred by Leander Sire in a new musical comedy by Martha Morton and A. Baldwin Sionne, entitled "The Four Leaf Clover."

George Ade's play which Henry W. Savage is to produce in the fall is named "The County Chairman." Maelyn Arbuckle has been engaged to play the leading role.

M. W. Hanley announces that for next season he will produce "The Garden of the Gods," the domestic drama in four acts by Tris S. James, who will be starred in the play in his original character of Douglas.

GOWN GOSSIP.

The craze for jet, which is at its height in Paris at present, is beginning to be felt here.

The shortening of the skirt means the passing of the full sleeve. The two cannot artistically exist together.

The fashionable fur next season, say the importers, will be mole. Already it is fashionable in Europe, and American furriers have placed immense orders for it.

In making up tussore or shantung gowns it should be remembered that these materials fit better and look trimmer if made with plaits which are stitched flat at least part of the way.

The fad for oriental effects is increasing. Eru linen suits are trimmed with oriental gimps and galloons, and even with bits out of old oriental embroideries, the older and more faded the better.

The full skirt is certainly coming back. Not a few gowns are being made with long straight skirts gathered all around the waist line and falling in full folds to the feet in unlike severity of line.—New York Post.

Coltsfoot Tobacco.

Coltsfoot tobacco is smoked by the rustics in small country places in England and is called by them "the finest remedy on earth for catarrh." It is simply a powdered form of the leaves of the common coltsfoot, a plant found growing wild in chalky soil.
